Technological innovation is taking place at a breath-taking pace. Simple, open source internet-based applications and services designed to enhance on-line collaboration are now available to the wider public at little or no cost at all. These new online services known as Web 2.0 applications - sometimes called 'social media' - enable people to collaborate, create, share and publish information.

The Technical Centre for Agricultural and Rural Cooperation EU-ACP (CTA) has the mandate to facilitate access to and dissemination of information in the fields of agriculture, rural development and sustainable natural resource management in 78 countries in Africa, the Caribbean and the Pacific (ACP). Supporting the adoption of Web 2.0 applications represents a great opportunity for meeting it.

The University of the Gambia (UTG), in collaboration with CTA will host will host two 5-day Web 2.0 Learning Opportunities starting on Monday 20 June 2011 and Monday 27 June 2011 respectively. Participants will be introduced to selected web 2.0 applications and learn on how to use them hands-on.

The Learning Opportunities will cover advanced online searching, getting information served via alerts and RSS, collaborating remotely using wikis and Google Docs, using VoIP, online mapping and social networking. Participants will get a chance to see what others have done, get hands-on experience on how to use innovative applications, and assess how they could adopt these innovations within the context of their work and organisation.

These Learning Opportunities form part of CTA initiatives that support development partners in networking, accessing and disseminating information more effectively.
